Why Advance Care Planning?

Making decisions about medical care is not always easy – especially now that machines can keep patients alive even when there is no hope for recovery. It's your right to participate and plan for your care. But at some point, you may become unable to make your own health care decisions. That's why it's important to think and talk about your feelings and beliefs with your loved ones – long before critical medical decisions must be made.

This guide provides you with information about creating an “advance directive” – a legal document that states your preferences about medical care. Please read it carefully and discuss it with your family, doctor, nurse practitioner, patient representative, chaplain or other caregiver.

Completing an advance directive will give you a voice in making medical decisions if you become unable to understand or speak for yourself at the time such decisions are made. No health provider or insurance company can require you to have an advance directive document to provide you with services. However, it's a good idea to have an advance directive document in place if you want your family and health care providers to understand and follow your wishes about your medical care. It will also make it better for your family should you become unable to participate in decisions about your care. They will not have to guess about your choices, uncertain of what you would want them to do. And, if family members or your health care providers disagree about what is right for you, an advance directive document can help you avoid having decisions made by the probate court.

NOTE: The first use of terms you may not understand have been indicated in italics and defined in the “Definitions” section at the end of this booklet.

Please note that these forms are not the same as NH statutes. You can obtain the statutory forms from NH Revised Statutes Annotated 137-J. The enclosed forms are substantially similar to NH statutes but written in simpler language. This guide was prepared based on New Hampshire law as it existed in January 2014 and printed to inform, not to advise. This is not intended to be a substitute for legal, medical, or other professional advice. Consult a trained expert for interpretation and application of current New Hampshire law. Your thoughts or answers to these questions can help provide you and your caregivers with peace of mind.

VALUES

- What gives your life its purpose and meaning?
- What do you value most about your physical or mental well being? For example, do you love the outdoors? To read or listen to music? To be aware of who you are with?

FAMILY/FRIEND RELATIONSHIPS

- Who among your family and friends are important in your life?
- Have you talked about your medical care choices with your loved ones when problems arise or death comes close?

SPIRITUAL/RELIGIOUS BELIEFS

- How would you describe your spiritual or religious life?
- Do you have a faith community, church or synagogue support you?
- Do you have religious beliefs about medical treatment?

MEDICAL

- Have you talked with your doctor or health provider about your health concerns and medical treatment questions?
- Under what conditions would you want the goals of medical treatment to change from trying to continue your life to focusing on your comfort?
- Would you want a hospice team or palliative care offered to you?
- How does cost influence your decisions about medical care?
- Do you want CPR used to try to revive you if your heart stops or you stop breathing? How effective is CPR likely to be for you?

MAKING PLANS

- If you could plan it today, what would the last day or week of your life be like? Where would you be? Who would be with you?
- What will be important to you when you are dying (comfort, no pain, family present, music, prayer, being touched or held, etc.)?
- What general comments would you like to make about dying or death?
- Are you interested in organ or tissue donation?
- Are there people to whom you want to write a letter, or for whom you want to prepare a taped message, perhaps marked to be opened at a future time?
- What are your wishes for a memorial service: songs or readings you want, or people you hope will participate?
- Would you prefer to be buried or cremated, or do you have no preference? Have you contacted a funeral home?

Questions about advance directives

What are advance directives?

Advance directives are instructions you give regarding your future care. They may be oral or written. They may have been shared with family, friends, or medical providers. Family, friends and medical providers attempt to understand and fulfill your instructions, no matter what form they are in. However, to ensure that everyone understands your instructions, the State of New Hampshire recognizes a written advance directive as a legal document with two parts: a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care and a Living Will.

What is a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care (DPOAH)?

A Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care is a part of the advance directive document in which you name another person to act as your health care agent to make medical decisions for you if you lack capacity to make health care decisions. It can apply in many different health treatment situations. You can include instructions about which treatments you do or do not want, or how long you want to try possible treatments.

What is a Living Will?

A Living Will is a legal document that instructs your health care provider to give no life-sustaining treatment if you are near death or are permanently unconscious, without the hope of recovery. It does not require identifying a person to make any decision.

Do I need both a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care (DPOAH) and a Living Will?

It is a good idea to complete both parts of the advance directive document because they serve two different purposes. A DPOAH takes effect whenever you become unable to make decisions – for instance, during surgery, or even when you become temporarily unconscious. A Living Will takes effect only when there is no hope for recovery. Under New Hampshire law, if the terms of your advance directive conflict, the DPOAH will overrule the Living Will.

What is the difference between a DNR order and an advance directive?

In the event that your heart stops beating and you stop breathing, health care providers will normally perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) to try to restart your breathing and heartbeat. However, you may decide that you do not want CPR performed. In this case, you may ask for a Do Not Attempt Resuscitation (DNR) or a Portable-DNR (for use outside of a hospital or nursing home facility) order to be written. The differences between a DNR and an advance directive include: an advance directive is not a medical order, even though it is a legally recognized document; a DNR order is a medical order; a DNR order applies only if your heart stops beating and you stop breathing, while an advanced directive deals with many other medical issues and decisions, such as whether to provide medically assisted feeding or hydration. You may want to include your wishes about DNR orders in your advance directive.

Why would I want a DNR order?

There is an attempt to provide everyone with CPR unless they indicate otherwise. Attempts at CPR are rarely successful when someone is very frail or has a serious illness, and both failed and successful attempts at CPR may often cause additional suffering. Talking with your doctor or other health providers can help you understand the potential benefits and burdens of CPR and whether a DNR or Portable-DNR order is your preferred choice. A DNR only refers to CPR and does not mean that all other treatments (e.g., pain relief, comfort care, etc.) are stopped.

What if I want more than one person to make my health care decisions?

Some people want to designate more than one person to be their health care agent. For example, a person may want all three of their children to share responsibility for medical decisions. If you list more than one person as your health care agent, it is important to know that the first person listed will be your decision-maker, followed by the next person listed, and so on. If you desire a different decision-making process (such as making sure all of your agents agree before a decision is made), you must make this clear in your advance directive.

How is it determined whether I am unable to make decisions about my medical care?

If the doctor or advanced registered nurse practitioner responsible for your care determines that you are unable to understand the significant risks and benefits of your health care decisions, they can document that you do not have “capacity”, in which case your health care agent, if you have designated one, will make decisions for you. This is not a permanent designation; if your doctor or ARNP later determines that you have regained capacity, you will be able to make your own health care decisions once again. If, when you do not have capacity to make medical decisions, you want the decisions of your health care agent to be followed even if you object to them, you must make that clear in your advance directive.

What if a serious injury or sudden illness leaves me unconscious, unaware, and unlikely to recover?

You would initially receive all the medical care required to keep you alive. If the doctors believed there was little chance you would ever recover the ability to know who you are or to respond to those around you, would you want to continue life support? Your ‘advance directives’ or conversations about this issue beforehand could instruct the person or people you have designated as your DPOAH regarding continuation of life-sustaining treatment in that situation. You could ask to have your care focused on keeping you comfortable without using medical interventions to keep you alive, if that was your preference.

What doesn’t the advance directive accomplish?

An advance directive is a guide that only covers certain important health care issues. Your wishes expressed in an advanced directive will need to be put into medical orders once you are determined to lack the capacity to make your own health decisions. An advanced directive does not provide for other important personal planning or financial matters. A “Durable General Power of Attorney” is recommended for financial matters or other personal planning. You should discuss this and other non-health related issues with an attorney. It does not establish guardianship.

Are my old advance directive documents still valid?

Yes. An advance directive does not need to be renewed. However, if you want to change something in your advance directive document, you must complete a new one. You might want to re-examine your health care wishes from time to time. New Hampshire’s Advance Directive law changed on January 1, 2014. However, if you have an advance directive document that was created before this date, it will still be honored under New Hampshire law.

Can I revoke my advance directive document?

You can revoke or cancel your advance directive document orally or in writing at any time. A separation, divorce, or marriage annulment action will automatically revoke your DPOAH if your spouse or partner is your health care agent and you have not named an alternate in your document. Additionally, if a protective order is filed between you and your health care agent, your DPOAH will also be automatically revoked if you have not named an alternate agent.

What if my advance directive document was completed in another state?

New Hampshire law states “An advance directive, living will, or similar document executed in another state, and valid according to the laws of the state where it was completed, shall be as effective in this state as it would have been if completed according to the laws of New Hampshire.” Generally, it is recommended that you complete a NH advance directive if you live or receive medical care in NH.

Who should have copies of my advance directive document?

Copies of your documents should be with your doctor, your hospital, the person you select as your health care agent or long-term care facility and family. Ideally the original documents should be stored where you keep your other important legal papers such as wills, birth certificates and social security cards.

How will my health care providers know I have an advance directive?

You should tell your doctor, nurses or other health care providers that you have an advance directive and provide them with a copy for your medical record. Any time you are admitted to a hospital, you will be asked if you have an advance directive. If you know that you will be admitted to a hospital, you should bring a copy of your document with you.

Do I need an attorney?

You do not need an attorney to create an advance directive document. You can simply use the form in this brochure, which is printed substantially similar to New Hampshire laws. However, if you have any questions or special concerns, you can talk with an attorney, doctor or trained staff from a hospital or hospice. You can get the statutory forms from NH Revised Annotated Statutes 137-J.

Who can witness the signing of my advance directive document?

In order to be valid, your advance directive document can be signed either in the presence of two witnesses or a notary. Your health care agent named in your DPOAH, spouse, heir, attending doctor or advanced registered nurse practitioner, or person supervised by your doctor may not serve as a witness. Only one of the two witnesses may be your health or residential care provider or one of your provider’s employees.

Why would I want to allow my health care agent to make decisions over my objections?

A DPOAH allows your health care agent to make decisions if you are unconscious or unable to communicate your wishes. A DPOAH may also be used to allow your agent to make decisions for you even if you are conscious and able to communicate but do not have capacity to make health decisions due to a condition that affects your cognitive or intellectual functioning, such as Alzheimer’s disease or dementia. When you sign your advance directive, you must decide whether or not to give up your right to object to your agent’s decision about treatments. If you do not give up this right, treatment cannot be given or withheld over your objection. However you decide to answer the treatment against objection option, you can still change or cancel your DPOAH at any time by deciding you want to change your choice of a health care agent.

to participate and plan for your care.*

Selecting Your Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care or Health Care Agent

When you decide to pick someone to speak for you in a medical crisis, in case you are not able to speak for yourself, there are several things to think about. The chart below is a tool to help you decide who the best person is. Usually it is best to name one person or agent to serve at a time, with at least one alternate, or back-up person, in case the first person is not available when needed.

Compare up to 3 people with this tool. The person best suited to be your DPOAH or Health Care Agent rates well on these qualifications ...

Name #1:
Name #2:
Name #3:
		1. Meets the legal criteria in your state for acting as agent or representative? (This is a must! See page 7 – Disclosure.)
		2. Would be willing to speak on your behalf.
		3. Would be able to act on your wishes and separate his or her own feelings from yours.
		4. Lives close by or could travel to be at your side if needed.
		5. Knows you well and understands what’s important to you.
		6. Could handle the responsibility.
		7. Will talk with you now about sensitive issues and will listen to your wishes.
		8. Will likely be available long into the future.
		9. Would be able to handle conflicting opinions among family members, friends, and medical personnel.
		10. Can be a strong advocate in the face of an unresponsive doctor or institution.

What to Do After you Pick a Health Care Agent

- Talk to your agent about the qualifications on this worksheet.
- Ask permission to name him or her as your agent.
- Discuss your health care wishes and values and fears with your agent and doctor or health provider.
- Make sure your agent and your doctor or health provider gets a copy of your advance directive.

Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care: Disclosure Statement

This is an important legal document. Before signing it, you should know these important facts:

Except if you say otherwise, this document gives the person you name as your health care agent the authority to make any and all health care decisions for you when you lack the capacity to make health care decisions for yourself (in other words, you no longer have the ability to understand and appreciate generally the nature and consequences of a health care decision, including the significant benefits and of and reasonable alternatives to any proposed health care.) "Health care" means any treatment, service or procedure to maintain, diagnose or treat your physical or mental condition.

Your health care agent, therefore, will have the power to make a wide range of health care decisions for you. Your health care agent may consent (in other words, give permission), refuse to consent or withdraw consent to medical treatment, and may make decisions about withdrawing or withholding life-sustaining treatment. Under no condition will your health care agent be able to direct the withholding of food and drink that you are able to eat and drink normally.

You may state in this document any treatment you do not want, or treatment you want to be sure you receive. Your health care agent's power will begin when your doctor or nurse practitioner certifies that you lack the capacity to make health care decisions (in other words, that you are not able to make health care decisions). You may attach additional pages to the directive if you need more space to complete your statement.

Your health care agent cannot consent to or direct any of the following:

- commitment to a state institution;
- sterilization; or
- termination of treatment if you are pregnant and if the withdrawal of that treatment is deemed likely to terminate the pregnancy, unless the treatment will be physically harmful to you or prolong severe pain which cannot be alleviated by medication.

If, for moral or religious reasons, you do not want to be treated by a doctor or Advanced Practice Registered Nurse (APRN) or to be examined by a doctor or ARNP to certify that you lack capacity, you must say so in the directive and you must name someone who can certify your lack of capacity. That person cannot be your health care agent or alternate health care agent, or any person ineligible to be your health care agent.

Your health care agent shall be directed by your written instructions in this directive when making decisions on your behalf, and will be further guided by your medical condition or prognosis. Unless you state otherwise in the directive, your health care agent will have the same power to make decisions about your health care as you would have had, if those decisions made by your health care agent are made consistent with state law.

It is important that you discuss this document with your doctor or other health care providers before you sign it, to make sure you understand the nature and range of decisions which could be made for you by your health care agent. If you do not have a health care provider, you should talk with someone who is knowledgeable about these issues and can answer your questions.

Check with your community hospital or hospice for trained staff. You do not need a lawyer's assistance to complete this directive, but if there is anything in this directive you do not understand, you should ask a lawyer to explain it to you.

The person you choose as a health care agent should be someone you know and trust, and he or she must be at least 18 years old. If you choose your health or residential care provider (such as your doctor, ARNP, or an employee of a hospital, nursing home, home health agency or residential care home, other than a relative), that person will have to choose between acting as your health care agent or as your health or residential care provider, because the law does not permit a person to do both at the same time.

You should consider choosing an alternate health care agent in case your health care agent is unwilling, unable, unavailable or not eligible to act as your health care agent. Any alternate health care agent you choose will then have the same authority to make health care decisions for you, if the primary agent cannot serve.

You should tell the person you choose that you want him or her to be your health care agent. You should talk about this directive with your health care agent and your doctor or advanced registered nurse practitioner, and give each one a signed copy. You should write on the directive itself the people and institutions who will have signed copies. Your health care agent will not be liable for health care decisions made in good faith on your behalf.

Even after you have signed this directive, you have the right to make health care decisions for yourself as long as you are able to do so, and treatment cannot be given to you or stopped over your objection. However, if you have been determined by your doctor or ARNP to be incapacitated, you may want treatments to be withheld or given according to your agent's directions, even if you vocally object to those treatments.

You have the right to revoke the power given to your health care agent by telling him or her, or by telling your health care provider, orally or in writing, that you no longer want that person to be your health care agent.

Once this directive is executed it cannot be changed or modified. If you want to make changes, you must make an entirely new directive.

You have the right to exclude or strike references to advanced registered nurse practitioners in your advance directive and if you do so, your advance directive shall still be valid and enforceable.

This power of attorney for health care will not be valid unless it is signed in the presence of two (2) or more qualified witnesses, who must both be present when you sign and who will acknowledge your signature on the directive, OR in the presence of a notary public or justice of the peace. The following persons may not act as witnesses:

- The person you have designated as your health care agent
- Your spouse or heir at law, or beneficiaries named in your will or in a deed
- Your attending physician or APRN, or person acting under the direction or control of the attending physician or APRN

Only one of the two witnesses may be your health or residential care provider or one of your provider's employees. 🍌

DEFINITIONS

Allow Natural Death (AND)

Allow Natural Death is an alternative language used by some people who do not want CPR but want only comfort care.

Attending physician or attending advanced practice registered nurse (APRN) –

A doctor or APRN who has primary responsibility for your treatment and care. An APRN means a registered nurse having specialized clinical qualifications under state law.

Capacity to make health care decisions –

The ability to generally understand the risks and benefits of a health care decision, as well as any alternate options for treatment. This is determined by a doctor or APRN.

CPR or Cardiopulmonary resuscitation –

Emergency medical procedure used to try to restart heartbeat and breathing, which can involve blowing into the mouth, pushing on the chest, inserting a breathing tube into the windpipe, giving medicines into your vein, and electrical shock.

Comfort care – Keeping you as comfortable and peaceful as possible, including pain medication, giving you ice chips and lip ointment, turning your body to prevent bed sores and bathing you.

DNR or Do Not Attempt Resuscitation order –

A medical order placed in your medical chart in a hospital or other health facility that says you do not want CPR performed if your heart or breathing stops. You can extend a DNR outside a hospital or health facility by completing a Portable-DNR order. It is a bright pink colored form that stays with the person who requests it.

Guardianship – A guardianship of an incapacitated person is established by the Probate Court when it determines that the functional limitations of a person have declined to the point where that person's ability to participate in and perform minimal activities of daily living is not present.

Incapacity of the person must be proved "beyond a reasonable doubt" and there must be no other available solutions that would impose fewer restrictions on the person.

Health care agent – Someone chosen as your Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care to make health care decisions when you are unable to express your own wishes for care or treatment.

Health care decision – This means informed consent, refusal to give informed consent or withdrawal of informed consent to any type of health care, treatment, admission to a health facility or procedure to diagnose or maintain an individual's physical or mental condition.

Hospice care – A team approach to provide comprehensive medical, nursing and social services, spiritual care and bereavement support for you and your family near the end of life.

Intravenous or IV line – A tube placed in your vein that is used to give you fluids, blood or medication.

Life-sustaining treatment – "Life-sustaining treatment" includes, but is not limited to, the following: medically administered nutrition and hydration, mechanical respiration, kidney dialysis, or the use of other external mechanical or technological devices. "Life-sustaining treatment" may include drugs to maintain blood pressure, blood transfusions, and antibiotics. "Life-sustaining treatment" shall not include the administration of medication, natural ingestion of food or fluids by eating and drinking, or the performance of any medical procedure deemed necessary to provide comfort or to alleviate pain.

Medically administered nutrition (feeding) – Using IVs or tubes to supply food when you are unable to eat. A feeding tube is a medical tube through which food or water is put into your body. It does not include the natural process of eating foods.

Medically administered hydration – Using IVs or tubes to supply water when you are unable to drink. It does not include the natural process of drinking fluids.

Near death – An incurable condition caused by injury, disease or illness that reasonable medical judgment finds will cause death at any time, so that life-sustaining treatment will only postpone death. This is determined by a doctor or APRN working with an additional doctor.

Organ and tissue donation – Giving your usable organs for transplantation into others, which can save or improve their lives. Organs you can donate: heart, kidneys, pancreas, lungs, liver, intestines. Tissue you can donate: cornea, skin, bone marrow, heart valves, connective tissue. To be transplanted, organs must receive blood until they are removed from your body. Therefore, it may be necessary to place you on a breathing machine temporarily or provide other organ-sustaining treatment. Doctors evaluate whether you have organs or tissue suitable for transplant at or near the time of death. Your body can still be shown and buried after your death.

Palliative care – Taking care of the whole person – body, mind and spirit. This approach views dying as natural and personal; its goal is to provide you with relief of symptoms (see Hospice care).

Permanently unconscious – A lasting condition, indefinitely without improvement, in which you are not aware of your thought, your self and environment and other indicators of consciousness are absent as determined by a neurological assessment by a doctor in consultation with your doctor or APRN.

Persistent vegetative state – An irreversible condition where reasonable medical judgment finds the complete loss of key brain functions. It results in the end of all thinking and consciousness, although heartbeat and breathing continue. Periods of sleep and wakefulness will still occur.

Trial of treatment – To try treatment(s) for a period of time (such as 1 or 2 weeks) until it is decided that the treatment will or will not succeed.
